

RICHARD P. MEEHAN, JR. PROFILE AMMERMAN, WALSH RECEIVE HONORS ASSOCIATION RECOGNIZES PLAYERS OF THE YEAR

Letter from the President

he Golf Association of Philadelphia has been promoting and preserving the game of golf since 1897. I am honored to serve as its President.

A good friend, who completed his term with the Executive Committee last year, said the best part of volunteering for the GAP was the friendships he made. This has been my experience in golf and especially as a volunteer for the GAP. As a course rater, I was frequently asked how much work is involved volunteering for the GAP. I always answered that there is a lot of time required, but the fun and the rewards more than compensate for the commitment.

Golf is a family affair at our house. We are fortunate to play at two clubs, Huntingdon Valley Country Club and the Moorestown Field Club, with active golf programs, a strong commitment to junior golf and constant support of the GAP. Both clubs encourage family activities and welcome juniors into the game. Forming the junior program at Moorestown seemed a great way to spend time with the kids. At least I could give them a chance to decide if they liked the game as much as I do. Past coaching experience in the recreation softball, baseball and soccer leagues was fun, but golf is a sport to enjoy for your lifetime. Although I am proud to say that all three of my children can beat me at golf, I haven't given up hope of competing in GAP championships and have served notice at home that it is now time for me to focus on improving my game.

The Association's purpose seems straight forward enough, to promote interest in the game within 150 miles of City Hall Philadelphia and to promote activities for the benefit of caddies, including means for higher education. We take this charge very seriously. You, the members of our clubs, are our customers. Having served for six years on the Executive Committee, I know we are committed to protecting and preserving the game and helping GAP deliver the best services to our Member Clubs.

Our outgoing president, Dan Burton, encouraged us to raise the bar on the quality of the Association's services. Dan, thank you for your passion for the game and leadership of the GAP. Mark Peterson sets the tone for customer service and his directors, Marty Emeno and Kirby Martin, lead a team that approaches each event with enthusiasm and professionalism. This year, we are adding more GAP individual members to our subcommittees in order to assure that we keep in touch with your needs. We have no pride of authorship and are consistently working to improve. Please call anyone on the Executive Committee or staff if you have suggestions for us.

We have a rich history of golf in the Golf Association of Philadelphia. Our clubs have hosted U.S. Opens, U.S. Amateurs and Walker Cups. At the recent Player's Dinner, we honored our champions for 2008 and inducted our inaugural Hall of Fame of Class of R. Jay Sigel, William Hyndman, III and J. Wood Platt. These three have distinguished golf records including Golf Association of Philadelphia championships and national championships. The real character of these men was told in stories by Jay and the grandsons of Mr. Platt and Mr. Hyndman. I was privileged to read a letter from Mr. Hyndman's fellow Huntingdon Valley member Jim Sullivan who shared how Big Bill was an inspiration to everyone to work hard.

In order to promote the game, we will continue to look for ways to expand the playing opportunities for all of our members. This year, our golf season grew by two months when we introduced our Winter Series events.

Providing education is also a top priority at the GAP. Our Junior College Golf Seminar was held this month and we are already planning for our President's Council in the spring. Past President Craig Ammerman just can't stop volunteering. After completing his term on the USGA, he is back home as Riverton Country Club's green chairman and organized the Association's Environmental Conference last month to discuss the challenge of balancing operating costs and member expectations. People in the News

Chris Lange of Newtown Square, Pa., and Overbrook Golf Club advanced to the quarterfinals of the U.S. Mid-Amateur Championship on Sept. 6-10 at Milwaukee Country Club in River Hills, Wis., before falling to Todd Mitchell of Bloomington, III., 9&7. Lange qualified tied for 31st at 5-over par before, for the second time in his 13 USGA Championship showings, winning a match. The 53 year old defeated Matthew Clarke of Loudonville, N.Y., 3&2, in round one before knocking off qualifying medallist Richard Berkmeyer of St Louis, Mo., 1-up, in the second round. His Sweet Sixteen match became the talk of the town. Lange was 4down after 13 holes before rallying to defeat Steve White of Jackson, Wyo., in 19 holes. Lange was 3under par over the final seven holes in the improbable, come-from-behind victory.

"It was a lot of fun even though it came to a thunderous halt," said a laughing Lange. "I wasn't expecting too much when I got there. I was nursing a tennis elbow. I found something putting and it really got me going."

Lancaster Country Club's Brandon Detweiler, 21, of Akron, Pa., advanced to the U.S. Amateur Championship's Round of 16 on Aug. 18-21 at Pinehurst Resort & Country Club in the Village of Pinehurst, N.C.

Detweiler, a North Carolina State University sophomore who qualified tied for 10th with a score of even-par 140 for 36 holes, defeated first-round opponent Conrad Shindler of Westlake, Texas, in 19 holes and Brian Harman of Savannah, Ga., 1-up, in round two. In the Round of 16, Detweiler dropped a hard-fought decision to Patrick Reed of Augusta, Ga., in 23 holes. Detweiler parred the par 4, 442-yard 18th to force extra holes.

Nicholas Reach, 16, this year's Christman Cup Champion, and Greg Pieczynski, 26, the Open Championship winner, both competed in the Nationwide Tour's Northeast Pennsylvania Classic on Aug. 21-22 at Elmhurst Country Club in Moscow, Pa. Reach, a Moscow, Pa., native playing on a sponsors exemption, was tied for 16th after Day One with a score of 3-under-par 67 but carded a 76 in Round Two and missed the cut by five shots. "I was just trying to go out and enjoy the experience," said Reach, a sophomore at Scranton Prep High School. "It was great." According to PGATour.com, Reach was trying to become the second-youngest player ever to make a 36-hole cut on the Nationwide Tour. Pieczynski, of Kingston, Pa., a teaching professional at The Academy Golf Center, tied for 115th with rounds of 70 and 74. Pieczynski gained entry into the championship field by earning one of three available spots at an early-June Northeast Classic Sectional Qualifier conducted by the Philadelphia Section of the PGA at Glenmaura National Golf Club. This was Pieczynski's third Northeast Pennsylvania Classic appearance. He also made the field in 2003 and 2007.

Obituary

E. Colton O'Donoghue, Sr., of Moorestown, N.J., a Golf Association of Philadelphia Executive Committee member from 1985-93 and tireless fundraiser for the Platt Caddie Scholarship, died Sept. 13. He was 91 years old. A longtime member at Riverton Country Club, Mr. O'Donoghue had a deep love for the game and served as the club's president from 1976-1988. He was co-owner of Holley Associates, a manufacturing firm located in Moorestown, N.J., which he sold to American Greetings Corporation in 1975. Since then he was a partner in Gardner-O'Donoghue, a manufacturing representative for merchandising displays. He was also deeply involved in the Family Service of Burlington County from 1979-1998, serving as Vice President, President and Chairman of the Board of Trustees. Memorial contributions may be made to Platt Caddie Scholarship, P.O. Box 808, Southeastern, PA 19399, or Cystic Fibrosis Foundation, 2004 Sproul Road, Suite 208, Broomall, PA 19008.

CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION. Joseph "Bud" Lewis, who served as the head professional at Manufacturers Golf & Country Club from 1943-79 before moving to pro-emeritus status, was treated to a birthday party at the club on Aug. 22. Mr. Lewis, who turned 100 about a week later, is the oldest living member of the PGA of America. More than 225 people gathered for the celebration. Bud is pictured with sisters Helen Latch (left) and Rosalie Elker (right).

Correction In the July/August issue on page 15 under the William Hyndman, III resume, it was incorrectly stated that Mr. Hyndman competed in seven Masters Tournaments. He played in nine.

WHAT DOES THE GOLF ASSOCIATION OF PHILADELPHIA DO FOR YOU?

Association conducts inaugural Environmental Conference

uggestions on how to cost-effectively manage golf facilities while being the best-possible steward of their environments highlighted an Environmental Conference sponsored by the Golf Association of Philadelphia. One hundred and twelve persons registered for the day-long session held on Oct. 10 at Philadelphia Country Club.

A panel of four agronomists – two regional directors from the USGA Green Section (Dave Oatis, northeast, and Stan Zontek, mid-Atlantic) and two course superintendents (Chris Carson, Echo Lake Country Club, and Jerred Golden, Hershey's Mill Golf Club) – presented 18 "take home ideas." These ranged from a recommendation to use lower-cost fertilizers because "the grass plant does not recognize the difference between a high-priced fertilizer and lower-cost" products to performing audits on irrigation systems and energy use to make sure your course is getting what it needs in the most cost-effective way.

The first recommendation from this panel was to join the Audubon Cooperative Sanctuary program, because it "raises awareness, encourages environmentally responsible management and helps publicize positive things golf courses provide." The second program of the day featured Jim Sluiter, an ecologist from Audubon International, which manages the Cooperative Sanctuary programs, and Jim Roney, superintendent at Saucon Valley Country Club, a participant in those programs.

Sluiter described Audubon's Cooperate Sanctuary program, in which about 2,300 courses nationwide are enrolled. In Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware, 318 courses are participating and 45 have earned certification. Participation comes at a low cost ($200) and, for those who take it seriously, can deliver strong results: a survey showed that, among participating courses, 75 percent reduced pesticide use and costs and 89 percent improved cultural control methods to decrease the need for chemical use."

The six areas that the Audubon Sanctuary Program focuses on are environmental planning, wildlife and habitat management, chemical use reduction and safety, water conservation, water quality management and outreach and education.

Other programs presented during the day focused on responsible environmental management of portions of golf facilities beyond the course, the future of water use on golf courses in New Jersey and environmental challenges that arise when a new course is built or an existing one is modified.

Jim Singerling, chief executive officer of the Club Managers Association of America (CMAA), spoke of dangers to golf's and a club's reputation that can occur when other parts of the facility are not managed correctly. These include the kitchen, the cart barn and the maintenance buildings and equipment. In cooperation with the USGA and Audubon International, the club managers created a software program that leads clubs through recommended management procedures for these non-golf areas of a facility. The program is free of charge to clubs that go onto the CMAA Web site, and is easy to use.

Agronomist panelists speak on "take home ideas" at the Association's Environmental Conference.

Fred Sickels, assistant director for water supply permitting of the New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection (NJDEP), described work his department has done to understand where the water comes from for 292 golf courses it has identified. Some of these courses are being pushed to use non-potable sources (effluent or stormwater) to take pressure off the acquifer. In certain areas of the state, Sickels suggested those would be the only sources available to a new course. He also said that sewage authorities in some parts of the state will be required to reduce release of effluent into bodies of water by selling it for use on places such as golf courses.

Bill Love, a golf course architect who is the author of a book called An Environmental Approach to Golf Course Architecture, spoke on the need to be very environmentally aware when building a new course or restoring an existing one. In the latter case, much as with working on existing buildings, when you begin a restoration you may be subject to regulations that didn't exist when the course was built. A course preparing for a restoration should carefully check federal, state and local environmental issues. Love said.

PCC reaches $1 million in donations, Pine Valley next hiladelphia Country Club recently eclipsed contributions totaling more than $1 million in support of the Platt Caddie Scholarship Trust and Pine Valley Golf Club is soon to follow. Philadelphia Country Club reached the milestone in mid-August to join Merion Golf Club as $1 million contributors to the Caddie Trust.

"When Merion reached that mark about 11/2 years ago I thought it would be nice if Philadelphia Country Club could join them," said Bill Walsh, a long-time Platt ally and PCC member who has led the club to donations of more than $850,000 in the last eight years. "It's almost miraculous how large the Trust is now. And I love to see it being a former caddie myself.

"I want to make sure that everyone at Philadelphia Country Club knows how much I appreciate their understanding and generosity."

In 2007 and for the fourth consecutive year, Philadelphia Country Club topped all Platt contributing clubs with $140,907. A total of 115 caddie-scholars from PCC have been awarded $537,507 since the Trust's inception in 1958. For the 2008-09 academic year, nine caddie-scholars are receiving $34,800 for their higher education.

"I got involved because [former Caddie chairman] Franny Poore asked me to," said Walsh, who recently received the Golf Association of Philadelphia's Distinguished Service Award, in part, for his work with the Trust. "He didn't like asking people for money and wondered if I would do that for him. I agreed."

By the end of the calendar year, Pine Valley Golf Club will join the aforementioned $1 million duo. Pine Valley needs less than $50,000 in contributions to reach the $1 million milestone.

Including the 2008-09 academic year, 36 Pine Valley caddiescholars have been awarded $180,850 in grants.

More information about the Platt Caddie Scholarship can be found on the Web at www.PlattCaddieScholarship.org including an on-line donation form. Donations can also be mailed to P.O. Box 808, Southeastern, PA, 19399.

AMMERMAN WINS ARNOLD PALMER AWARD

By Joe Logar

hen Dan Burton phoned Craig Ammerman to inform him he had been selected to receive the Arnold Palmer Lifetime Service Award, his response was not what Burton expected: Silence.

"He was speechless," recalled Burton, president of the Golf Association of Philadelphia. "He had no idea this was coming. And I've got to tell you, we were both very emotional."

Ammerman becomes only the sixth winner of the Palmer Award.

William C. Campbell, Judy Bell, both former presidents of the USGA, and Sir Michael Bonallack, former secretary of the Royal & Ancient Golf Club of Scotland, were the initial winners in 1997. In 2001, they were joined by two local men of distinction, O. Gordon Brewer, Jr., former USGA Executive Committee member, and Jim Sykes, who was executive director of the Association for 25 years.

For Ammerman, 60, of Cherry Hill, N.J., who was president of the Golf Association of Philadelphia from 2000-02 and served as a member of the U.S. Golf Association's ruling Executive Committee from 2002-07, the Palmer Award couldn't be more fitting or meaningful.

Not only is it the highest honor bestowed by the GAP, it is named for a man Ammerman idolized as a kid and came to know personally and admire as an adult. When Ammerman finally met Palmer, in 1997, he discovered that there was a rich and famous athlete who actually lived up to his generous image.

It was the night of the Association's Centennial Gala, where Palmer was to be the keynote speaker, and it was Ammerman's duty, as chairman of the Centennial Committee, to host the living legend for the evening.

As Ammerman introduced Palmer around the room that night, he was struck by the number of people who approached with some variation of the same opening line: "Arnie, you probably don't remember me but we met in 1968 as you were walking off the 13th green at ..."

Clearly, Palmer had no idea who most of these people were, but you never would have known it from his responses.

"Arnold would put his hand on their shoulder and say, 'Nice to see you again. How've you been?" said Ammerman, marveling at the very quality that has made Palmer one of the most beloved figures in sports. "He sure knows how to make people feel good."

The respect and affection Ammerman feels for Palmer is not unlike the trail of goodwill that marks his own life and career.
Whether it was at the old Philadelphia Bulletin, which he ran at the ridiculously young age of 31, or the GAP or USGA, the word on Ammerman is always the same: smart as a whip, works hard as a mule, loyal as a dog, volunteers for everything, talks more than a teenage girl on her cell phone and full of stories and tales from the front lines of golf.

"I didn't know Craig from the man on the moon when he came onto the [USGA] Executive Committee," said Jim Reinhart, a Milwaukee financial adviser who would become one of Ammerman's best friends on the USGA's 15-member board.

During Ammerman's first USGA Executive Committee meeting in 2002, in Colorado Springs, Colo., Reinhart said he couldn't help but notice that this newcomer had an opinion and running commentary on every item on the agenda – and he wasn't shy about speaking up.

"I remember chuckling to myself and thinking, 'Who is this knucklehead?" recalled Reinhart. "He turned out to be one of the most special people you could ever meet. He is just a rare individual who gave his heart and soul to the game of golf and to the USGA. He was the consummate volunteer."

Jim Vernon, another buddy on the USGA Executive Committee who is now president of the organization, cites Ammerman's devotion to the game and his can-do spirit, but also his intellect.

"He has this ability to put all the pieces together into one big picture and to see the story behind the story, whether it's technical, human or political," said Vernon. "Maybe that comes from his earlier career."

After growing up in Richmond, Ky., where he got hooked on golf at the age of 10 playing with his dad on a nine-hole course, Ammerman landed in Philadelphia in 1980, as the last editor of the GAP Executive Committee had already worked out a plan for succession. Christman would retire at the end of 1999 to be replaced by Kirby Martin. Sykes would stay three more years, to be replaced by a promising young man who had already joined the GAP staff, Mark Peterson.

When Sykes fell ill in 2000 and was forced to retire three years ahead of schedule, the choice for Ammerman and the GAP board was whether to bring in an experienced outsider as executive director or to stick with Peterson, who was only 24.

"I thought we should go with Mark anyway and the Executive Committee agreed," said Ammerman. "All we did was wait two months until he turned 25 to make the announcement."

To this day, Ammerman cites the smooth changing of the guard at GAP — especially the decision to appoint Peterson — as one of his proudest moments in golf. "He has been in the job nine years and he's still only 33," said Ammerman. "And he keeps raising the bar."

Said Peterson. "I will be forever indebted to Craig. His friendship and willingness to guide and encourage me during my first few months as director will stay with me for a lifetime."

During his five years on the USGA Executive Committee, working as a rules or tournament official, it was not unusual for Ammerman to spend 100 nights a year on the road and $20,000 out of his own pocket in travel money. He spearheaded an initiative to improve communications between the USGA, the PGA Tour, the PGA of America, the R&A and the LPGA. Behind-the-scenes, lobbying his colleagues on the Executive Committee, Ammerman also played a significant role in

"THE WORD ON AMMERMAN IS ALWAYS THE SAME: SMART AS A WHIP, WORKS HARD AS A MULE, LOYAL AS A DOG AND VOLUNTEERS FOR EVERYTHING..."

Bulletin. When even heroic efforts were not enough to save the newspaper, Ammerman and a colleague launched a company, Health Ink & Vitality Communications, the eventual success of which has enabled him to semi-retire in comfort.

Ammerman's first involvement in golf administration came in 1984, when the president of Riverton Country Club, Colton O'Donoghue, who passed away last month, asked him to fill a vacancy on the club's board. O'Donoghue was so impressed that eight years later, in 1993, he saw to it that Ammerman was appointed to the GAP board, hand-picked to chair the committee on the upcoming Centennial.

When the Centennial was a resounding success, Ammerman was elected GAP president until he was tapped for the USGA Executive Committee.

"Craig's presidency of GAP came at a crucial time," said Burton, the current president.

Crucial because of the changes that lay ahead for GAP, even before the unexpected occurred. At the time, GAP's two top staffers, longtime executive director Jim Sykes and tournament director Fred Christman, were both past 60 years old and facing retirement. Ammerman and the helping Merion Golf Club land the 2013 U.S. Open Championship.

"Craig was Merion's biggest cheerleader," said Reinhart, his fellow Executive Committee member.

No one can spend any time around Ammerman and not come away with a story or two, many of which do not involve stains on his neckties. One of the best comes from USGA President Vernon.

The scene was the 2005 Amateur Public Links at Shaker Run Golf Club in Lebanon, Ohio, a tournament Ammerman ran during his years on the Executive Committee. After Clay Odgen won, 1-up, the USGA hurriedly set up for the awards ceremony. Within minutes, Ammerman, microphone in hand, was presiding.

"Craig, who is always sensitive to the people who make the championship possible, mentioned the fans, the tournament staff, the volunteers, the pro and his staff, the facilities chairman and the green-keeper and his staff," said Vernon. "He concluded by saying thank you and see you next year in Bremerton, Wash. Problem was, he had forgotten to award the trophy."

2008 GAP PLAYERS OF THE YEAR

AMATEUR PLAYER OF THE YEAR, MICHAEL MCDERMOTT By Gian Rodriguez

Michael McDermott's record fifth William Hyndman, III Player of the Year Award came on the heels of arguably one of the most dominating amateur seasons in the Golf Association of Philadelphia's 112 years.

McDermott, who chose to forgo shoulder surgery in the off season in lieu of rehab, picked up right where he left off after last year's Joseph H. Patterson Cup victory, tacking on wins at the 2008 Middle-Amateur and Amateur championships to become the first player to hold all three titles at the same time.

"The Player of the Year is not something you think about when you start a season, but to win it five times now, I feel very fortunate," said the Bryn Mawr, Pa., resident who also lays claim to POY titles in 2000-01, '03 and '07. "The mere fact that I was able to play this season felt like a bonus to me and I was ready to take advantage of the opportunity."

McDermott finished the year with 990 POY points, a staggering 368.4 points ahead of second-place finisher Glenn Smeraglio of Yardley CC.

In addition to winning the Mid-Am. for a second time and the Amateur title for the first time, the 33-year-old Merion GC member also managed to finish as low Amateur at a rain-shorted Open Championship. It was an event McDermott classified as a disappointment because he felt he was playing well enough to make a charge in the second round.

"I had a chance to do something special if I could have pulled that out," said McDermott of possibly winning the Open and becoming the only player to hold every major GAP championship title at the same time. "It was a little frustrating because I was playing so well, but Mother Nature just didn't cooperate to let us get out there for round two."

Nonetheless, McDermott's efforts allowed him to finish in a tie for second place in the Silver Cross standings with Cole Willcox of Philadelphia CC, a tough player McDermott had to surpass in order to win the one major Golf Association of Philadelphia amateur event not already on his impressive golf resume.

"The highlight of the year for me was the final of the [Amateur Championship] against Cole Willcox where he and I both played beautifully all day," McDermott said. "It was a title that had eluded me and to play so well on Father's Day weekend with my 3-month-old son Brad waiting for me in the clubhouse was a real thrill.

"There are so many great players in [the Association] and our events are so popular that to come out on top is a tremendous honor," McDermott added. "Everyone that plays competitive golf knows that wins are so difficult, so to win this award after having won two major events this year is very gratifying for me."

And when asked if there was any secret to his season-long success, McDermott didn't point to coaching, rehabilitation on his shoulder or even his dedication to the sport as a reason for his best tournament season to date. Rather, McDermott's success stemmed from an unlikely yet welcomed distraction in which he didn't hesitate to point out.

"Changing diapers," he simply stated. "Changing diapers."

SENIOR PLAYER OF THE YEAR, TOM BARTOLACCI, JR. By Rick Woelfel

The 2008 season was one that saw a plethora of seniors play outstanding golf. But Tom Bartolacci, Jr.'s performance stood out above them all.

The Saucon Valley CC veteran won the Golf Association of Philadelphia's Senior Amateur Championship and recorded several other top-tier finishes before finishing third in the Senior Silver Cross Award standings and qualifying for match play at the U.S. Senior Amateur Championship.

He was rewarded for his performances with the Senior Player of the Year Award. The 57-year-old Bartolacci finished the year with 505 points. U.S. Senior Amateur Champion George "Buddy" Marucci, Jr., was second with 450.

"I feel very good about winning it," Bartolacci said, "and very fortunate to do so. The bar on any level of golf in the Philadelphia area is very high. There were an awful lot of fine seniors who played well throughout the year and could have come out on top, guys like Don Donatoni (from White Manor CC), the Thompsons (Andy and Ray of Overbrook GC), Frank McFadden at Overbrook GC and Gordon Brewer (of Pine Valley GC). They all should have been players of the year."

Bartolacci got his season off to a fast start in May, when he tied for fifth in the Francis B. Warner Cup Gross at Whitford CC.

In early July, he qualified for match play of the Brewer Cup at Huntingdon Valley CC and finished off the month with a tie for 16th at the Frank H. Chapman Memorial Cup at North Hills CC in one of the most competitive events of the year; a total of 22 players finished within six shots of the lead.

The day after Labor Day, Bartolacci arrived at The Springhaven Club for the start of the Senior Amateur Championship. He opened with a 71 that left him tied for second place, two shots behind leader Tom DiCinti of Links GC.

The following day, Bartolacci found himself two shots off the pace with three holes to play but burst out of a pack of contenders by draining an eight-foot birdie try at No. 16 and playing the last three holes in even par.

His second consecutive 71 put him at 2over par 142 for the 36 holes, one shot in front of five players tied at 3 over.

"It' a personal accomplishment and I feel very satisfied," Bartolacci said at the time. "It's not easy for players like myself to win in Philadelphia because there are so many great amateurs. Historically, there have always been guys who are a cut above, and that set the bar so high."

Like many of his fellow seniors, Bartolacci is at a point in his business career that gives him more time to focus on golf.

"If you look at it, I'm probably playing more now than I ever have," he said. "The maturity factor maybe makes the field a bit more equal. Age sometimes is a leveling factor. Maybe it just takes some of us longer to learn how to play. I'm a smarter player than I was."

Following his win at the Senior Amateur, Bartolacci headed to Fort Worth, Texas and Shady Oaks CC, to play in his second U.S. Senior Amateur. The Washington Crossing resident shot 73-79 for a 152 total to qualify for match play with a shot to spare. He lost to Shady Oaks CC member John Grace, 6&5. in the first round.

In the previous U.S. Senior Amateur, Bartolacci defeated 2001 champion Kemp Richardson in the first round of match play before being eliminated by Sam Farlow, who eventually made it to the championship match.

He's enjoyed having the opportunity to test his game against the best players in the country.

"You really get to see how your game matches up," he said. "To watch them play is a learning experience. I got to qualify with Mike Rice and Mike Bell this year, both of them former champions (from 2005 and '06, respectively). As long as I can continue to be competitive and continue to learn, who knows?"

Whatever success he may have at the national level, Bartolacci is a Philadelphia golfer at heart. It is here where he feels at home.

"[The golfers in Philadelphia] are really great guys to play with," he said. "We're all friends. It's nice to see everybody do well."

JUNIOR PLAYER OF THE YEAR, ROBERT GALBREATH, JR. By Gian Rodriguez

Robert Galbreath, Jr., of Huntingdon Valley CC capped off his junior golf career in record breaking fashion after becoming the first junior player to earn his third Junior Player of the Year award on the strength of a 685-point total. That mark was good for a 305-point margin of victory and the highest point total in the award's brief history, eclipsing Galbreath's old record of 617.5 points set in 2006.

Galbreath's largest point sum of the year came after he surpassed yet another milestone by winning the 94th Junior Boys' Championship for a record fourth time after beating Russell Hartung of Doylestown CC, 4&2, at Huntingdon Valley CC.

"I've worked very hard to get to this point," said Galbreath, 17, after his win back in June. "This was, I'd say, the one goal that I had all year. If I didn't do anything else, I'd just be happy with this win at Huntingdon Valley, my home course, in front of a lot of people I know. And to beat a great player in Russell [Hartung], it feels great.

"I really wanted to get that record [fourth win] because you can be an amateur forever but you can never be a junior again."

Galbreath also netted points by finishing a close second at the Christman Cup, advancing into match play at the Amateur Championship and for qualifying for the Patterson Cup and Open Championship. But it was the world. It was a great feeling to advance into match play.

"I never really did well in any American Junior Golf Association [AJGA] events or other national tournaments. That was the best golf I could play for a five-day stretch and I will remember that for the rest of my life."

Galbreath is headed to the University of Central Florida next fall.

Bill Walsh, former President, longtime Platt Supporter, honored with Distinguished Service Award By Fred Behringer

illiam T. Walsh is the recipient of the Golf Association of Philadelphia Distinguished Service Award for 2008 in recognition of his exhaustive list of contributions to the betterment of GAP and to the game of golf.

Since his arrival in the Philadelphia area in 1955, Bill Walsh has demonstrated excellence and thankless service as an outstanding competitor, a leader of many facets of GAP operations and an inspirational promoter of the J. Wood Platt Caddie Scholarship Trust. He also is credited with the persuasiveness that led GAP to accept non-private clubs into membership in the 1990s.

His efforts epitomize the criteria for recipients of the award: "Individuals from any golf-related disciplines who have exemplified the spirit of the game at its highest level and who have made a substantial contribution to the game at the Philadelphia, national or international level."

And Walsh, 86, continues to serve the game in important ways after more than a half century of helping others.

Paul "Chet" Walsh, one of 15 children raised by Bill and his wife of 60 years, Barbara, points out that his father has led Philadelphia Country Club's Platt Trust fundraising to a total of $850,000 in eight years. Philadelphia Country collected the highest total among GAP clubs in five of the last six years and has produced the most lifetime members of the Trust. "None of this would have happened," said Chet, "without the hard work of Bill Walsh."

For many years, he sent hand-written notes of solicitation and appreciation on behalf of the Trust.

"I probably spend more time on the Platt Trust than I do working," acknowledges Walsh, who is in the office nearly every day at the Walsh Associates insurance business he operates with three of his children. "I enjoy doing it. I feel for those kids to some degree because I was a caddie myself. When the caddies thank me for what we have done for them at Philadelphia Country Club, that makes you feel good."

Villanova University, the Ardmore Rotary Club and the Retired Senior Volunteer Personnel of Montgomery County are among other organizations who have benefited significantly from Walsh's participation and fundraising.

Walsh began playing golf at age 10 in New Jersey, caddied at Metuchen Golf & Country Club and won two championships there and one at Plainfield Country Club before moving to the Philadelphia area. He later added two club championships at Skytop Golf Course and seven at Philadelphia Country Club.

Walsh continues to serve the game in important ways after more than a half century of helping others.

He was about to play his 600th different golf course as the deadline for this article approached, and he was looking to score his age or better for the 200th time.

When Chet Walsh won his sixth championship at Philadelphia Country Club, he decided to stop competing for the title so he would not tie or pass his father. "I heard about it," Bill recalled, "and I said to him, 'Chet, a father always gets a lot more pleasure out of what his children accomplish than what he accomplishes himself. I'd love to have you go on and win it five more times if you could."" Chet now holds nine championships.

Walsh considers his GAP Senior Amateur Championship in 1991 his most significant golfing achievement. At age 69, he became the oldest competitor to claim the title. He also holds 10 Father-Son titles with four different sons over the last five decades.

He served on the GAP Executive Committee from 1982 to 1995 and as GAP president from 1991 to 1994.

Craig Ammerman, himself a past GAP President, feels Walsh's most important contribution to the Association may have come after he served as President "when he shepherded through a bylaw change that for the first time opened the membership in the Golf Association to golf facilities other than private ones."

GAP presidents typically serve a year on the Executive Committee when they leave office, and in 1995 Walsh was in that position when, Ammerman said, "It became apparent that a majority of the Executive Walsh family members attended the Annual Meeting in which Bill Walsh was recognized with the DSA.

Committee wanted to change that bylaw. It was an issue that was moderately contentious on occasion, and it might not have gotten through the Committee but for Bill's support.

"The vote wasn't that close, but given the respect in which Bill was held, his support for the change probably carried some votes

Bill Walsh (right) and son P. Chet with it. Then it became clear that it could be an uphill battle to get it approved [by the GAP member clubs]. Some of the clubs that are better known, ones like Merion [Golf Club] and Pine Valley [Golf Club] and Philadelphia Country Club and Aronimink [Golf Club] and others like that, were very supportive, but there was a group that wasn't and didn't want to do it. And so Bill just became a quiet diplomat and talked one-on-one with these clubs." The bylaw change won approval by about 85 percent.

"I'll be forever grateful to Bill for being willing to take the time to stick around and make sure we got that done," said Ammerman. "It truly would have plagued the Golf Association if it hadn't passed — and should have plagued the Golf Association. And unless you were on the inside, you wouldn't have known that Bill had anything to do with it.

"His contributions to golf just seem to get better and better. His work supporting the Platt Trust is amazing. He's always willing to help if somebody asks him to. If there's anybody who deserves whatever people give him, it's Bill Walsh."

Walsh said he was "very honored" to learn of the Distinguished Service Award. "Any success I've had in life," he emphasized, "is largely due to the wonderful wife that I was fortunate enough to marry. We're very lucky. I thank God every day for having given me such a good wife and so many healthy, wonderful children. We've been very blessed."

News of the award pleased the Walsh children. "We are very excited that Dad has received the GAP Distinguished Service Award," said Brendan Walsh, the head golf professional at The Country Club in Brookline, Mass. "He has always taught us to give back in those areas in your life that you have received so much. He has the utmost respect for the game of golf and the GAP."

Daughter Tez Seiberlich added, "My Dad has always been committed to the organizations he feels are most tied to his passions. The Golf Association of Philadelphia is certainly at the top of the list. This unselfish commitment has provided a strong example for his children. It's hard to find a Walsh son or daughter who isn't dedicating some of their time in service to a non-profit organization.

"Golf has provided much for my Dad – friends, challenges, time to spend with his children. He gets the greatest joy from this game. It is wonderful for him to be honored with this award. As Dad's time becomes more his own, I'm sure he will sit back and really appreciate this award, which represents all that he has given to golf in Philadelphia."

VOLUNTEER SPOTLIGHT

By J. Stacey Redican

BOB FITZGERALD NAMED VOLUNTEER OF THE YEAR

GOLF is a life-long pursuit and no one embodies that spirit better than Bob Fitzgerald, the 2008 Volunteer of the Year. Fitzgerald started in the game as a caddie in 1941 at Manufacturer's Golf & Country Club under the tutelage of legendary figures George Fazio and Bud Lewis. Today, at age 81, Fitzgerald, who still plays golf four times a week, recently completed his 20th year of service with the Golf Association of Philadelphia.

"It's a very prestigious award. I was really surprised when I got the call," said Fitzgerald, who has been a member at McCall Golf & Country Club for more than 50 years, and a member at Sandy Run Country Club since 1983. "I have met so many nice people and old friends that I played golf with from a long time ago that it makes volunteering for the GAP so much fun."

Fitzgerald started with the Golf Association of Philadelphia in 1988 after his retirement from PECO. He contacted fellow Sandy Run Country Club member Jim McCann, at that time a member of the Association's Executive Committee, to ask how he could become involved with the organization. Fitzgerald was quickly absorbed into the Golf Association of Philadelphia volunteer family, and has been working as a starter and/or scorer ever since.

"I would like to continue volunteering until I'm 85 if I can," said the spry Fitzgerald, indicating that he still enjoys sending groups off the first tee.

Fitzgerald has been able to sustain his work ethic in spite of some recent physical setbacks, including triple bypass surgery four years ago, because, as he said, he works at staying healthy. After his heart surgery, he began to exercise rigorously, first, at the Abington Fitness Institute, and now at Planet Fitness, at least three days a week. Bob proudly notes that despite being the oldest of the Fitzgerald boys, he is in the best shape of all eight. That tenacity to stay fit also carries over to his diet. Fitzgerald regularly meets with a nutritionist and scans his food purchases carefully, making sure that he is not inadvertently adding any additional pounds.

"It's what you have to do," said Fitzgerald, who lives in Warminster, Pa.

Another benefit of his fitness regimen is that is has allowed Fitzgerald to literally travel around the world. He often journeys with his next-door neighbor, Rae Harff, and does not hesitate to go when the opportunity presents itself. He and his companion spent some time in Nova Scotia and on Prince Edward Island last year, eating mussels and lobster, and this year headed for the Canadian Rockies.

"Whenever [tournament assistant] Tristin [Suzenski] calls and asks me to work, I'm there," said Fitzgerald, who works four or five events annually.

He has seen the organization change over the past two decades and credits the current staff with having the biggest impact. He recognizes that they share his life-long love for the game. He is also proud of Sandy Run Country Club's roster of 14 volunteers, the largest group in the Golf Association of Philadelphia volunteer family.

Fitzgerald credits many of them for influencing fellow members to volunteer. "They talk it up," Fitzgerald said, "and that makes others want to help."

So, when you see our soft-spoken southpaw, either on the golf courses or at an event, be sure to shake his hand. You will be congratulating someone who has devoted 70plus years to the game we all love.

Thank you, Fitz, for the hard work and inspiration you provide.

"I just want to go out there and have fun."

While some may use that statement as a mantra for many things in life, for Jack Rosenberg, the 2008 Junior Sportsmanship Award winner, it's exactly the attitude he takes to the course, day in and day out. Combined with his attitude, it is also his unbridled respect for his fellow competitors, the game and himself that only solidified the Golf Association of Philadelphia's decision to name him as the third recipient of the sportsman award in the accolade's history.

out there and have fun."

"To be honest, you go out there and play for your pride and how you conduct yourself as a person," said Rosenberg, a mature 16, of Devon, Pa. "It' not like we are going out there to play for money. I just want to go

Peterson, Executive Director for the GAP. "His attitude on and off the course remains the same no matter how he's playing or finished in a tournament. And that is something special that does not go unnoticed."

Instilled in him by his parent's at an early age, Rosenberg admits that although his upbringing set forth the example of how he should act, it has been his friends that help cement that image.

"I think the biggest influence for me is my friends," said the Haverford School golfer. "Every one of them are great kids and we play almost everyday, have fun and a good time."

But don't let his kindhearted, respectful demeanor fool you. Rosenberg is a competitor who never loses site of what's important.

"I obviously go out there and try to win, but that's not what it's all about," said Rosenberg, who managed to make it into the Championship Flight of the 2008 Junior Boys' Championship. "How you play and how you conduct yourself during that time is a good representation of your character.

"I think that [this award] means the image of myself that I try to convey is definitely coming off in the right way."

A Q&A with Richard P. Meehan, Jr. the Golf Association of Philadelphia's 30th president

RICHARD P. MEEHAN, JR., became the 30th president of the Golf Association of Philadelphia at the organization's Annual Meeting on Oct. 22 at Philmont Country Club.

Meehan's election caps a rise through the Association's ranks, starting as a course rater in 1996, followed by service as junior chairman, finance chairman, awards chairman, treasurer and vice president. He is a Lifetime Member of the J. Wood Platt Caddie Scholarship Trust and he has been a member of the GAP Executive Committee since 2002.

A CPA by trade, Meehan is managing partner of Meehan & Associates in his hometown of Moorestown, N.J. He is a graduate of Lehigh University.

Meehan is a member of Huntingdon Valley Country Club, where he serves on the golf committee and Lynnewood Hall committee; Moorestown Field Club, where he founded the junior golf program and chaired it from 1998 to 2005; and Ballybunion Golf Club in Ireland.

Off of the golf course, Meehan has served on the boards of professional and civic organizations including, Cornerstone Bank; N.J. Society of CPAs Sports & Entertainment Group; Irish American Business Chamber & Network; Perkins Center for the Arts; Moorestown Community House; Lehigh Alumni Club of South Jersey and the Burlington County Boy Scouts of America.

The new GAP president met his wife of 30 years, Sue Thompson Meehan, at Lehigh. She is also a CPA and his business partner. They have a daughter, Mary Kate, who is employed by PricewaterhouseCoopers; and two sons, Jack, a junior at Lehigh, and Mike, a junior at Moorestown High School.

"Golf has been a family affair at our house," said Meehan. "Golf has given my dad [Richard] and me one of the ways to spend quality time with my kids. Our family trips are not all about golf, but our trips to Ireland almost always include playing golf after dinner at some of the most beautiful par-3 courses in the world."

He counts as a special memory "forming and running the junior golf program at the Moorestown Field Club, especially our junior program trips to the U.S. Amateur and President's Cup with my children."

Meehan first played golf at Moorestown High School, then spent a few years away from the game. His GAP/USGA Handicap Index is 8.8, and his most memorable round was a 75 in the wind and rain at Ballybunion.

He became involved with the Association as a course rater on the encouragement of Craig Ammerman, a Riverton member and a past president of GAP. "I have met many new friends through the GAP and even uncovered some old relationships," he noted. "Fred Ruttenberg, my first [course rating] captain, taught me how to rate a golf course 20 years after his mother taught me accounting in high school."

"I really got hooked on the GAP and its rich history of promoting golf in 1997 when I played in the Founders Cup and attended the Gala celebrating our 100th anniversary."

Richard Meehan offered thoughts about GAP's services and the challenges facing golf clubs in an interview with Fred Behringer of the GAP Communications Committee.

What services does GAP provide to its Member Clubs and their Members?

There's a real team effort at GAP. We strive to deliver the best services to our member clubs, and, of course, our success really starts in house with our staff, led by Mark Peterson and his directors, Kirby Martin and Martin Emeno, and supported by the rest of the staff. The Executive Committee serves as a resource for the staff helping to provide guidance and support.

One of the services that is most recognizable, the GAP Team Matches, kicks off our golf season. We have over 300 teams. It's the largest amateur match-play tournament in the country, and it gives our members a chance to have friendly competition and build friendships. Teams enjoy getting to play all of the other good courses that we have in the GAP.

We have a busy year. We conduct 58 tournaments, and our member clubs are really supportive in hosting these events. The tournaments are for all skills and all ages. At the end of the golf season, our annual Player's Dinner gives us the opportunity to honor all of our champions.

Behind the scenes we offer a lot of services, including our handicapping and course rating, that really let's us host tournaments on a level playing field.

When the day is done, our most rewarding program is the J. Wood Platt Caddie Scholarship Trust in which we award need-based grants for college assistance to deserving caddies.

How does GAP communicate with its Member Clubs and Members?

The most visible part of what the GAP offers is probably our Web site (www.gapgolf.org). It is really the cornerstone of how we communicate with our members. Complimenting the Web site are several other ways in which we communicate, including our electronic handicap GAP Revision newsletters and Golf Association of Philadelphia Magazine. We also have our President's Council, in which we invite the leaders of our Member Clubs to come and hear national speakers on issues that are important to the clubs. The GAP also conducts an annual comprehensive survey that covers every aspect of the club operation, not just golf operation. The results are reported to clubs participating in the survey.

How have GAP's services been changing to reflect the constant changes in the golf business?

Managing the clubs is not getting any easier and our club leaders seem to need information faster. In response to that need in particular, we're going to expand our capability to enable club leaders to pose questions to the GAP. In turn, the GAP will survey our members electronically to give them quick feedback. We're going to communicate those results in our new GAP Boardroom News, which is going to be geared to the boards of our clubs for timely issues that they need some help with.

What further help can the Association provide to help clubs meet the management challenge?

Every club president I talk to says the most important issue facing clubs, of course, is attracting new members. Families are busier and member clubs are competing for their recreation time and dollars. It seems that the families are more interested now in not just looking for golf, but they're looking for multiple activities that they can have the whole family participate in, whether that's paddle tennis or tennis or fitness or trapshooting like some clubs have. But they're looking for a second reason to join the club.

So our member clubs are trying to improve their infrastructure and trying to bring other amenities to the club. Huntingdon Valley, for instance, just formed a relationship with the Union League to provide our members access to the Union League facilities.

As clubs strive to maintain their courses while keeping pace with many regulations and increasing costs for the use of chemicals and water, GAP recently held an Environmental Conference to help our clubs address these issues.

What GAP is hoping to do is share the best practices that we hear or the new amenities that a club might offer so that our clubs can try to improve their operations.

What advice might you have for helping GAP's Member Clubs to cope with the challenges they face?

As far as attracting new members, it really has to be an all-hands-on effort. It has to be the board, the membership and the staff. Everyone has to work toward improving the club and attracting new members. Many of the clubs have actually hired a membership services coordinator who updates the club's Web site and promotes activities. Probably the biggest improvement I see clubs making is that they're recognizing that they need that internal assistance.

What opportunities are available for Members of GAP Clubs to volunteer and advance the game of golf?

Volunteering for the GAP is very rewarding. The volunteers can start like I did with the GAP in rating courses, raising dollars for our J. Wood Platt Caddie Scholarship, and in terms of conducting tournaments, we have starters, rules officials and tournament officials so there are loads of opportunities. We have well over 100 volunteers in GAP right now.

To become a course rater, do you have to be a low-handicap golfer?

Absolutely not. One of the thoughts out there is that everybody who rates golf courses has a low handicap, but, no, you can be any handicap as long as you devote time to learning the process and can read charts that only a CPA could love. The process gives you great insight into slope and course ratings and usually includes a round of golf.

How do you see the outlook for golf clubs at this testing time?

I think the clubs have a lot of hard work ahead of them to attract new members. Our most successful clubs are those that have a combination of value for the member and offer the members a sense of pride and camaraderie. For families, it's a great time to join a club. Almost all the clubs are looking to improve their facilities and make their clubs more family friendly. I would just suggest that people find a club with the amenities that they're looking for where the whole family can participate.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE CHANGES

J. Clark O'Donoghue of Riverton Country Club, who served as the Golf Association of Philadelphia's Ex-Officio to the Platt Caddie Scholarship, was elected Vice-President. Mr. O'Donoghue had served as Chairman of the Platt since 2004. Christopher J. Terebesi of Chester Valley Golf Club, a member of the Executive Committee the last seven years, was named Secretary. Mr. Terebesi currently chairs the Communications Committee and has been instrumental in the development of the Golf Association of Philadelphia Magazine since its inception 1½ years ago. Mr. Frank Rutan, IV of Philadelphia Cricket Club remains the Treasurer. Mr. Rutan has served in that capacity since 2006. Also, John M. LeBoeuf of Philadelphia Country Club replaces E. Gerald Hurst of Lookaway Golf Club on the Executive Committee. Mr. LeBoeuf has been an avid golfer since the age of 12. He has been a member of Philadelphia Country Club since 1997 and has served as the green's committee chairman for the last two years. Mr. LeBoeuf works in the financial services industry. Mr. Hurst served on the Executive Committee from 2004-08. Most recently, he was chairman of the PLAY Golf Program. Jack C. Endicott of Manufacturers Golf & Country Club will now serve as the Golf Association of Philadelphia's Ex-Officio to the Platt Caddie Scholarship. Mr. Endicott has recently served on the Golf Association of Philadelphia's Executive Committee and as Vice-Chairman of the Trust. Mr. Endicott has been on the Platt Board since 1995 and as its Vice-Chairman since 2004. He has been a GAP Executive Committee member since 1998.

Brewer to receive USGA's 2009 Bob Jones Award

Gordon Brewer, Jr., 71, a two-time USGA Senior Amateur champion, long-time volunteer and dedicated servant to the game of golf, has been chosen to receive the United States Golf Association's 2009 Bob Jones Award.

Presented annually since 1955, the USGA's highest honor is given in recognition of sportsmanship in golf. The Award, selected from nominations across the golf community and chosen by a diverse and distinguished committee, seeks to recognize a person who emulates Jones' spirit, his personal qualities and his attitude toward the game and its players. The Award will be presented to Brewer on Feb. 7, 2009, at the USGA's Annual Meeting in Newport Beach, Calif.

"It's a tremendous honor," said Brewer, "in fact, when I received the phone call, I had to pinch myself to make sure I wasn't dreaming.

"When you look at the list of winners, you're humbled," he said. "To be part of such an esteemed group and to know this award reflects Bobby Jones and the model he set for the game, makes me very grateful for the recognition."

"Gordon is well-known as a golfer and person, and he has a deservedly outstanding reputation on and off the course," said fellow Bob Jones Award winner Bill Campbell, who won the U.S. Amateur Championship eight years after receiving the Award in 1956 and is the only person ever to serve as both USGA president and captain of the R&A. "He knows golf from the inside-out, and is widely admired in all respects."

"The Bob Jones Award going to Gordon Brewer is recognition well deserved."
- Arnold Palmer

Like Campbell and other past winners of the USGA's most prestigious award — a list that includes inspirational sports figures such as Byron Nelson, "Babe" Zaharias and Arnold Palmer — Brewer is more than just a great champion.

"The Bob Jones Award going to Gordon Brewer is recognition well deserved," said Palmer. "Gordon has been a great credit to the game, both as a fine player and as a long-time supporter of amateur golf and its principles of competition and sportsmanship."

Brewer began his storied career as a top amateur golfer in 1967, when he won the Philadelphia Amateur Championship. He added a second Philadelphia Amateur in 1976 and a Pennsylvania Amateur title in 1984. Competing at the national level, Brewer played in more than 40 USGA championships, beginning with the 1968 U.S. Amateur. He finished runner-up to longtime fellow-competitor and friend Jay Sigel in the 1985 U.S. Mid-Amateur Championship and won the USGA Senior Amateur in 1994 and 1996. In 2008, Brewer won three Golf Association of Philadelphia Super-Senior titles.

Brewer's career was highlighted in 2002, when he captained the USA Team at the World Amateur Team Championship, leading D.J. Trahan, Hunter Mahan and Ricky Barnes to victory in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia. "It was an honor to serve as captain of the team," Brewer said. "I have the utmost respect for the team competition and what it means."

As a key figure in the Pennsylvania golf community, Brewer served as the president of the Pennsylvania Golf Association and chairman of the J. Wood Platt Caddie Scholarship Trust Fund. He also served on the USGA Executive Committee from 1996 to 2001 and on the PGA Board of Directors from 2001 to 2003.

"It's hard for me to describe the importance of golf in my life," Brewer said. "That's why I agreed to accept the request to become a candidate for the USGA Executive Committee. When one has gotten as much as I have out of golf, it's hard to say no when you're asked to give something back to the game."

Brewer served the USGA tirelessly while dealing with some of the organization's most complex issues. As Chair of the Implements and Ball Committee, Brewer was a key player in the efforts to limit the spring-like effect of golf clubs. He was also a charter member of the Mid-Amateur Championship Committee, established in 1981.

A former president at Huntingdon Valley Country Club – and seven-time club champion – Brewer currently serves as President of Pine Valley Golf Club in New Jersey.

"They don't come any finer than Gordon," said James D. Sykes, former executive director of the Golf Association of Philadelphia and Brewer's longtime friend.

An accomplished sportsman in his youth who earned a basketball scholarship to Guilford College in Greensboro, N.C., Brewer didn't play golf until he was 19 years old. He became fascinated with the sport after a few trips to the driving range, and soon was a devoted student of the golf swing and its mechanics. His diligence resulted in his making the golf team his final two years at Guilford. "I wasn't very good at all starting out," Brewer said. "But once I started to play, I just absolutely fell head-over-heels in love with the game."

"Gordon doesn't do anything lightly when it comes to golf," said Jack Connelly, longtime head professional at Huntingdon Valley and a former president of the PGA of America. "He loves the game and gives a lot back, because of the gentleman and the sportsman that he is. He was my first golf chairman when I became head professional 35 years ago, and I learned a lot from him. And as a PGA board member, he contributed immensely, because of his knowledge of the game and his business acumen."

Professionally, Brewer served as the Vice President of Finance for Alco Standards, Inc. and IKON Office Solutions in Philadelphia where he operated with the greatest integrity, living Jones' command for sportsmanship and fair play on and off the golf course.

Brewer and his wife, Gail, have been married for 49 years and reside in Pine Valley, N.J. Brewer's son, Oliver G. (Chip), III, is president and chief executive officer of Adams Golf in Plano, Texas.

ABOUT THE BOB JONES AWARD

Presented annually since 1955, the Bob Jones Award is the USGA's highest honor and is given in recognition of sportsmanship in golf. The Bob Jones Award winner is selected from nominations from across the golf community and chosen by a diverse and distinguished committee that includes the Commissioners of the PGA and LPGA Tours, members of the press, and leaders of affiliated golf organizations such as PGA of America and the Golf Course Superintendents Association, as well as the USGA.

TIGER WOODS' AT&T NATIONAL COMING TO ARONIMINK GC

IT'S OFFICIAL.Tiger Woods is coming to Philadelphia.

The top golfer in the world will bring his own tournament, the AT&T National, to Aronimink Golf Club. The club voted unanimously by acclamation in mid-October to host Tiger's tournament in 2010 and 2011.

"The members are thrilled, the staff is thrilled, it is a really exciting time at the club," said Richard Naumann, Aronimink's club manager. "All along the reaction from the members as the conversations began were very positive. There was no negatively regarding hosting the event."

The tournament is set for June 28-July 4, 2010 and June 27-July 3, 2011. Congressional Country Club in Bethesda, Md., is the current permanent site for the AT&T, however, the course will be undergoing renovations in 2010 and is set host the U.S. Open Championship in 2011. That created the need for an alternate venue. The event will return to Congressional in 2012 for at least three more years.

Representatives of the Tiger Woods Foundation – the event's beneficiary – made a presentation to the club before the vote.

"I think the proposal we provided to the club was compelling," said Greg McLaughlin, tournament director and president of the Tiger Woods Foundation. "Bringing Tiger Woods to Philadelphia is something the members wanted to do."

Added Woods, in a statement released after the club approved hosting the tournament. "Aronimink is an amazing course with a rich history in golf. I'd like to thank the board and the members for allowing us to hold our tournament there for two years."

The club will need about 1,300 volunteers to produce the event and is asking for support from its fellow Golf Association of Philadelphia members. Those interested in volunteering can visit www.attnational.org and click on the 2010 Tournament link on the left side.

Those interested in hospitality opportunities can contact 610-557-4400.

LOOKAWAY LENDS A HAND. Lookaway Golf Club donated $50,000 to the Philadelphia First Tee, the largest sum ever raised by a private club for a chapter of The First Tee, on Oct. 1 with an invitation only event. Jay Sigel (left center, yellow tie), President of the Greater Philadelphia Scholastic Golf Association and Philadelphia First Tee, is joined by program participants. "Banding together and creating this tournament for The First Tee has been truly gratifying for all of us. It has been a perfect way for our golf club to share as one family, and to give back to the community," said Bill Waldman, Lookaway president. "The First Tee is a phenomenal program helping young people build life skills and values that they will use throughout their lifetimes. The principles of playing the game of golf, such as honor, honesty and integrity, are the same values of our most upstanding and successful citizens, and we are pleased to do our part in helping our young people be the best they can be."

GULPH MILLS GC'S FRAZIER TAKES FARNUM CUP, SILVER CROSS

Thayer Farnum Cup on Aug. 26-27, the Women's Golf Association of Philadelphia's stroke play championship. Frazier shot an 80 on the final day at Llanerch Country Club to go with an opening 78.

She concluded the 36-hole tournament at 12-over par 158.

It's the third Farnum Cup title overall for the Gulph Mills veteran; she also won it in 1993.

"I'm pretty happy with the way I've been playing the last two years," Frazier said. "I've been working on a lot of different aspects of my game, technical and also keeping my emotions under control. It's coming together. I go the gym and I work hard on my game all around. It feels good."

Liz Haines of Merion Golf Club closed with an 84 to take second place alone at 164.

Peggy Ference of Chester Valley Golf Club wound up third at 166 after a closing 79.

Ference was the only player besides Frazier to break 80 over the course of the two days.

Frazier's Farnum Cup victory also earned her the Women's Golf Association of Philadelphia's Silver Cross title for the second year in a row. The Silver Cross is awarded to the competitor with the lowest combined total for the stroke play qualifying round in the Philadelphia Women's Amateur and the Farnum Cup.

Frazier's total for the 54 holes was 234. Kerry Rutan of Philadelphia Cricket Club wound up at 241 and Haines at 244.

The Rules of Golf

By David Staebler

Is it permissible to play two balls in match play?

an unrefereed match between John and Barry, John's tee shot on the fifth hole comes to rest in a poor lie in the right rough. The area is not marked as ground under repair but John thinks it should be and asks his opponent Barry if he agrees. Barry says he's not sure and suggests John play out the hole with two balls (one played from the poor lie and a second taking relief as though the area was ground under repair).

Is playing out with two balls a permissible procedure in match play?

No, Rule 2-5 (Match Play - Doubt as to Procedure; Disputes and Claims) applies. In match play two sides play against each other. The Rules of Golf grant each the right to know the status of the match at all times and during play of each hole, how many strokes the opponent has already made. The degree of risk a player decides to take with any given stroke may vary depending on these circumstances. In the example above, if John is permitted to play two balls (his original as it lies and a second under the ground under repair relief procedure) Barry's ability to determine the degree of risk he wishes to take during his subsequent play of the hole will be undermined. If John advances his original ball 50 yards out of the poor lie and knocks the second ball onto the green, Barry will face the dilemma of which of John's two balls to play against. The play of two balls will take away Barry's right, guaranteed by Rule 9-2 (Match Play Information as to Strokes Taken), to know how he stands against John during play of the fifth hole.

Playing two balls is a procedure permitted in stroke play (see Rule 3-3, Stroke Play - Doubt as to Procedure). In stroke play, the overriding motivation for each player is to score as low for the round as possible. Information about how players in the field stand in relation to one and other during a round is often not available and the Rules do not provide players a right to this knowledge. Players need only to be able to determine their score for any given hole before returning their score card to the Committee.

In the match between John and Barry, John may play only one ball. If he and Barry agree on how he should proceed (whether they agree he should play the ball as it lies or agree John is entitled to relief) then there is no dispute and the hole stands as played.

If they do not agree (Barry thinks the ball should be played as it lies, John thinks he is entitled to relief) and John decides to take relief, Barry can make a claim. At any time before either player begins play of the sixth hole: 1. Barry must inform John he is making a claim; 2. the facts of the situation (i.e. that he doesn't think John was entitled to relief from the bad lie in the rough and should have played his ball as it lay; and 3. that he wants a ruling from the Committee.

As Barry plays out the hole, he knows John's score with the ball he is playing will count if the Committee determines the ball was in ground under repair. With that knowledge Barry can decide the degree of risk he wishes to take during his subsequent play of the hole.

If the Committee determines John was not entitled to relief then he incurs a loss of hole penalty for failing to play his ball as it lay.

E-news will be a resource for club leaders and will enable us to share breaking news and best practices in club management.

In 2009, our focus will remain on promoting the game and supporting our member clubs. Don't be surprised when you hear a lot about ways to support junior golf in the coming year. Juniors are the future of our clubs; we will look for ways to expand our junior activities. Many of our clubs have invested time and energy into junior programs. They are finding that juniors get their friends interested and their friends encourage their families to join. If you get the kids involved, the parents will follow. Just look at the sidelines of recreation soccer fields lined by parents.

Volunteers are the backbone of GAP. Over 100 volunteers were honored at Volunteers' Day last month, and pins were awarded to volunteers celebrating 10 years or more service to the GAP. I encourage you to learn more about the opportunities to volunteer as rules officials, starters, course raters and fundraisers for the Platt Caddie Scholarship. You may find it is one of the most rewarding activities available.

This is a very challenging time for our member clubs. Some of our friends are suffering in this tough economic climate. Clubs are competing for shares of family recreation budgets and will have to work hard to attract new members. For families, it is a great time to join a GAP club. Many clubs are improving their facilities and offering a wide variety of amenities. I hope that families new to the game will experience as much enjoyment as my family has shared.

I am grateful for the support of the staff, committees and my family. I am already looking forward to the 2009 golf season.

Richard P. Mechan, Jr.

Buddy Marucci wins U.S. Senior Amateur

By Rick Woelfel

For quite some time, Buddy Marucci's playing career has been noteworthy for a single match he did not win than for the considerable number that he did.

In 1995, Marucci took a young Tiger Woods to the 36th hole in the U.S. Amateur Championship final at Newport Country Club.

Despite his successes since then, including his ongoing Walker Cup captaincy, there has been a sense that Marucci's playing career has somehow been incomplete.

No longer.

On a warm September day, at a venue celebrated as the golfing home of one of the greatest players of all time, Marucci captured the U.S.

Senior Amateur Championship to achieve his long-standing goal of winning a United States Golf Association title. Marucci, from Villanova, Pa., and Merion Golf Club, defeated George Zahringer of New York City, 2-up, in the 18-hole championship match at Shady Oaks Country Club in Fort Worth, the club Ben Hogan called home. The victory allows Marucci to add his name alongside Hogan on the list of USGA champions.

"Of all my accomplishments in golf, this has to top the list," Marucci said. "I can't wait to walk into the USGA Museum and see my name up on the Hall of Champions. It means a lot to finally win one of these after all of my years of trying."

Marucci becomes the first sitting Walker Cup captain to win a USGA title since the legendary Jay Sigel, who was serving as captain when he defeated O. Gordon Brewer, Jr., in an all-Philadelphia final at the 1985 U.S. Mid-Amateur Championship at The Vintage Club in Indian Wells, Calif.

Until he arrived in Fort Worth, Texas, for the championship, Marucci was unaware of the depth of Hogan's involvement with Shady Oaks.

"You always heard of Shady Oaks," he said, "and I always knew this was where he played his golf and practiced. But I didn't know about his involvement in the administration of the club and being a founder of the club.

"So that was an education. Certainly every-body who loves golf has heard about Ben Hogan practicing at Shady Oaks under the tree and that kind of thing. But I didn't realize that he and Mr. [Marvin] Leonard kind of put this thing together and then he was on the board and spent a lot of time there, so I didn't know that part."

Marucci, who, along with Zahringer won five matches to reach the final, never trailed in the championship match. He took the lead with a birdie at the par-3 seventh and never gave it up.

His biggest margin was 3-up after 12 holes before Zahringer, the 2005 U.S. Mid-Amateur champion, cut the margin to 1-up after 15.

Marucci maintained his lead with an eight-foot par save at No. 16. After the two halved the 17th, Marucci found the fairway with his drive at the finisher, then hit a 7-iron from 158 yards to 11 feet.

Zahringer faced a 25-foot birdie try to extend the match; when it slid by the cup he conceded to his opponent.

"I think Buddy's iron play was better than mine today, as was his putting," Zahringer said. "That may have been the difference."

In addition to the Frederick L. Dold Trophy and a golf medal, Marucci earned exemptions into the 2009 U.S. Amateur and the 2009 and 2010 U.S. Senior Opens. He will also be exempt from local qualifying for the U.S. Open in 2009.

Over the course of his career, Marucci has played in 52 USGA events, including 25 U.S. Amateurs, 23 Mid-Amateurs, two Walker Cups and one Senior Open. This year's Senior Amateur was his first.

Ironically, he will be unable to defend his Senior Amateur title at the Beverly Club because it will open on the same weekend the Walker Cup will be played at Merion GC.

The Golf Association of Philadelphia thanked its volunteers for their service on Oct. 13 at French Creek GC with its annual Volunteers Day.

The day included lunch, golf and dinner for all those who assisted the Association this year in administering tournaments and rating courses.

The Association is proud to say more than 125 individuals donated their time in 2008.
